PLANE STRUCK BUSH IN LAND- ING AND WAS WRECKED MONDAY MORNING

By Associated Press.
Maui, Island of Kauai, Hawaii, July 4.—Richard Grace, motion picture stunt flier, took off for the California coast at 5:24 a. m. today but his plane developed rudder trouble, and he returned to the Marking Sands Field less than an hour later.
The plane crashed into the rough landing strip and was totally wrecked. The pilot was uninjured.
For several days Grace had attempted to put his plane into the rough landing strip. It weighed more than 4,000 pounds, the plane twice punctured its wheels on the rough landing strip. The only one in the Hawaiian Islands of sufficient length to afford speed for a trans-Pacific flier.
The crash today was the twenty-fifth for the stunt flier of the movies. He wears a brace for his neck due to a cracked vertebra suffered in one of his performances for the camera.
He wrecked sixteen machines to provide thrills for picture audiences and smashed eight others in the course of his profession of leaping from plane to plane in mid-air, and changing from flying machine to a speed boat, automobile, train and motorcycle. The only serious accident that befell him was the one in which he injured his neck.
Grace, who is 29 years old, began flying when 16, his record showing some 5,000 hours in the air.

Tropical Heat Hinders Flyer

By Associated Press.
Maui, Island of Kauai, July 4.—Tropical heat again added a handicap to Richard Grace, motion picture stunt flier, in his plan to take off today on his projected flight to California.
Twice beaten by the fire jinx yesterday when he blew two tires in an attempt to take off, Grace was forced to send to Honolulu for other tires. The new ones were due here at 7 a. m. today but his chances for a take off were little better than before on account of the heat.

RESTRICTIONS ON FIREWORKS AID IN SAVING MANY LIVES

FEWER PRE-FOURTH ACCI- DENTS REPORTED THAN IN PREVIOUS YEARS

By Associated Press.
Chicago, July 4.—Premature celebration of Independence Day caused several deaths and many injuries throughout the country, although the fatality lists were small compared with some previous years, due to stringent fireworks laws.
In Milwaukee the police conducted a vigorous campaign against violators of the county and city fireworks ordinances, arresting more than 500 persons up to last midnight. The law outlaws certain explosives. In spite of the precautions five youths were burned by fireworks Sunday and six girls were attributed to celebratory fireworks.
The first death was reported Saturday from Tremont, Wis., where Arnold Ford, 8, was killed when he put a giant firecracker in an empty gasoline storage tank.
A somewhat similar accident at St. Louis resulted in the death of Haden Harris, 12, who succumbed to burns suffered when he shot a blank cartridge into a gasoline can. Ninety persons were treated for injuries in the Missouri city.
Although Chicago's city ordinance banning the sale and possession of fireworks was evaded by many "bootleggers," only three accidents due to explosives were reported in the two day pre-fourth celebration.
One of two persons injured in Springfield, Ill., was Mrs. Leola Hickson, 36, who was burned and lacerated when a giant firecracker thrown into a moving street car exploded in her face.
By Associated Press.
New Albany, Ind., July 4.—Two small girls were fatally burned and a third so seriously burned she may die when a fireworks fire Sunday afternoon destroyed a playhouse. The dead are: Norma Kinman, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kinman, and Lucille Moore, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moore.
Mary Heimbach, step-daughter of Frank Moore, was seriously burned.

Enlisted Soldier Accidentally Killed

By Associated Press.
Fort Collins, Colo., July 4.—Jack Alban, 23, an enlisted soldier stationed at Colorado Agricultural College was killed today during a 48 gun salute to the Union. After the 22nd gun had been shot, Alban took a ramrod to the mouth of the cannon to release the 23rd which was stuck.
Unseen by his comrades, due to smoke, which a strong wind sent back in their eyes, Alban stood at the cannon's mouth and the shell was fired.
Alban's wife and 5 year old daughter were standing back of the cannon when the accident occurred.
Clarence Brown and H. Milford McCalman of Lancaster were in the city Friday on business.

1776-1927.

In all great moments of history the keynote is simplicity. No elaborate web of theoretical policy moved this new nation into separate existence. Facts, not words, sent the New World on its independent course. Instinctive truth, stripped of pretentious glory, revealed in a human desire for self-respect and self-won title to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, this it was which crowned Independence Responsibility. For these two are one.

Those tiny groups of rugged men and loyal women took into their expert hands the fate of a continent, the destiny of a people, and the history of civilization knows none other like unto it in concept or in fruit. This sturdy people, closely gathered together for self-protection, stood a wistful group on this vast continent. They had claimed freedom; this freedom meant toil, hardship, self-denial, character, courage and unflinching devotion to a common purpose. It meant unnumbered problems of social regulation which seemed then grave and significant, yet counted nothing of those vaster, graver and more significant problems which time and eminence would bring.

Their heritage was of the future, all to be won. Their hands were as empty as their granaries, and only their hearts overflowed with that boundless vision which lifts the human race into a new era and exalts it to enlightened leadership. They took nothing from the Old World except experience and that mainly impulse which, knowing right from wrong, created the resolve to defend the one and destroy the other. Circumstances and conviction brought forth the dream of liberty, which character raised as a battle-standard in the setting sun of old wrongs and ancient systems; they turned face to the west and began that historic march steadily and sternly away from the past; slowly they planted the home sites of a courageous and self-reliant people, and cradled on those modest hearthstones an infant nation. The gloomy soil of tyranny, deep-ploughed by sacrifice, seeded by worthy aspiration, and watered by the tears of suffering, brought forth that citizenship which is the empire of man's hopes.

A panorama of 151 years replete with new era of which the United States, in the beginning, was the herald. It finds that tiny nation of 1776 a colossus, peopling the continent with industry and labor; it finds a citizenship into which has flowed the adventurous and the ambitious and the self-reliant men and women of every land; it finds genius and humanity; commercial greatness and common charity; a fulfillment of empire and an unbreakable fealty to the democracy of which it is built. Great men and great women mark the turning points of this great story, but their greatness was drawn from the nation. Splendid movements have sprung from this land to lighten the oppressed and strengthen the weak, but the splendor comes from the inherent purpose of the nation. Moral leadership has been thrust on this people but it comes as the trait of the simple virtues which those little groups cherished in their hearts and defended with their lives.

Independence has been certified in victory and justified in prosperity. Responsibility remains forever as the test of a nation's virtue. The responsibility is so to direct the lives of men that the sublime purpose of the glorious beginning never shall be diverted. The grandeur of the nation is enshrined in the hearts of the people and by their character it shines in glory or grows dim with neglect. No supremacy of markets, no world leadership, no preponderance of resource can preserve that which is the soul of the American nation unless the people, who are that nation, cling steadfastly to

LANDING FIELD IS BADLY NEEDED HERE TO ADVANCE CITY

Realizing that aviation progress is the most timely subject before the American people, with the possible exception of flood control, the Corsicana Sun is making a comprehensive survey of what is being done in every principal community in the United States, according to letters received by the Chamber of Commerce.

In piloting his plans, The Texas, the Air Corps for the All Texas "Friendly Invasion" of the North and East, Charles Pedley, well known Corsicana aviator, has attracted considerable attention to his home town.

ANOTHER FORWARD STEP.

Modern hospital facilities are among the greatest assets of which any city may boast. In fact a modernly equipped hospital and clinic is a necessity which can no longer be overlooked in the building of a prosperous city. The people of today demand such an institution and if it is not available in the city in which they live they will journey far to find such a place to their liking and in which they have confidence.

Saturday, the Corsicana Hospital and Clinic, a privately owned institution, the first of its nature for this city, will be thrown open to the public. Between the hours of 2 p. m. and 10 p. m. the people of Corsicana and Navarro county are cordially invited to inspect the building, its equipment and other modern and up-to-date features.

A group of prominent and progressive Corsicana doctors is responsible for this latest step in the city's progress. Recognizing the great need of such an institution these doctors became associated in the project with the one object in view and that to afford better hospital and clinic facilities to serve the community in which they reside. Through their efforts and a liberal expenditure of money the Corsicana Hospital and Clinic is the result, an institution of which any city would be proud. Members of the clinic include Dr. W. T. Shell, Dr. L. E. Kelton, Dr. W. K. Logsdon, Dr. W. C. Curtis, and Dr. E. P. Norwood.

The personnel represents an exceptionally strong combination of surgical and medical skill. All are too well known in this section of the state to need any introduction. They have practiced their profession in Corsicana for many years and they enjoy the confidence of all who have availed themselves of their services.

The Corsicana Daily Sun and Corsicana Semi-Weekly Morning Light wish to join with the entire citizenship of the city and county in extending congratulations and good wishes to those who have made this institution possible. It is a valuable asset and another milestone in the city's progress is passed.

Even if the days are hot the nights are cool and when the sun goes down we enjoy the cool breezes, which are just as cool and refreshing as those of high priced summer resorts. And the hot days are just what the farmer ordered. The life giving rays of Old Sol make the crops mature rapidly and the clear weather gives the farmer the opportunity to keep up with his work. In fact, agricultural and business interests never looked more promising than they do right now in Navarro county.

Justifying his presence on earth, Gilbert E. Chesterton, in a debate, said he once had given up his seat to three women. Now, there's what you call a broad and liberal man.

The 1926 rule against mentioning the size of the fish we caught at the summer capital was broken the first day out this year, due to the size of the fish.

The Great Statesman who has been sitting on a fence all his life thinks it is very wonderful that a Newark stepple-jack, stayed on top of a flag pole 12 days.

Fortunately it takes several kinds of us to make a world, as it wouldn't be a high class demonstration if all the celebrants had the hero's pose.

TOTAL RECEIPTS FOR YEAR WERE OVER 4 BILLION DOLLARS

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 1.—The treasury surplus for the fiscal year which ended at midnight last night was $655,899,921.70, the greatest in history.

Total ordinary receipts for the year were $1,329,394,441.10 and the cost of operating the government chargeable against such receipts was $3,493,584,519.40.

This particular surplus will have been dissipated, however, before Congress meets to draft a new tax bill, and any reduction must be based on estimates of the surplus for the current years.

Of the total excess $611,000,000 already had been applied to retirement of the public debt, the treasury announced. Part of the remaining $24,000,000 has been applied over as an increase in the net balance in the general fund and will be used for debt retirement purposes.

"More than one-half of the surplus of $655,899,921.70 is due to receipts on account of disposal of capital assets, back tax collections in excess of tax refunds and other items of a fast disappearing or non-recurring character," Acting Secretary Mills said.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM TRAVELERS IN FOREIGN LAND

The following letter is a continuation of one recently appearing in the Daily Sun written by Louis Wolens, giving an interesting insight into conditions he found in Alexandria, Egypt. The letter follows:

Apologies to the French

Among my acquaintances on the Marietta Pacha was a Dean of Columbia U. and his wife. This man has traveled extensively, and in addition has lived about ten years of his life in France. I became rather intimate with this learned gentleman and when I expressed myself as being surprised at the low standards of the French as a nation, he immediately accepted my challenge, and proceeded to prove to me that the French people as a whole are much more refined and have a higher code of honor and self respect than the Americans, and that it was unfair to judge the French by the low classes a visitor finds on the streets of Paris. Among the passengers were several families of French officers who were going to take up residence in Syria. To improve his point he insisted that a daughter present to dance. For three days, she would come from her seat and shake her head in the negative. Then the pacha introduced me to her mother, and her mother gave the lady her consent to dance. I thought this unusual, especially as such obedience and propriety is unusual in the States. And I am firmly convinced that the great middle class of French people have a standard of ethics and propriety that is above the American standard; and it is so great that they absolutely ignore the common class which does so much to confuse the impression the average visitor has.

Alexandria is in Sight

Here we are exactly one day ahead of schedule and no plans for our arrival in the greatest seaport on the Orient. As the shore line came in view we became greatly excited at the strange appearance this odd, red-colored, low surface had. As we neared, little row boats and fishing boats were floating about on the calm, deep, blue waters, and then all became excitement as the government yacht motored up alongside us and the officials came aboard to examine our passports, and collect the usual few cents tax for the privilege of debarking. We hadn't already been taxed enough. However, they were very nice about it by offering to take American money. I let my cabin steward pay my tax as I was determined not to get more French money as I would have no further use for it. More of the various hotels, among these were boats of the American Express and Thos. Cook and Co. We motored the American Express boat and they acknowledged our presence.

It looked like the boat would never dock as we had to wait for another French boat to leave that was just ahead of us. Finally we were drawn by long ropes alongside the dock, and our baggage went ahead with us and we were closely behind; our luggage was grabbed by three porters of the American Express and we followed to the custom house which was in a large pen about a block away. It seemed to me possible to drive off without going through customs; but the Express representatives said others had thought of that before me. Well we had a real examination, and all the time we had put the packing our grips on the boat was to do over again. We had a half-hearted examination in Cherbourg, but these suspicious Egyptians felt positive that anyone with money to come to their land should own something taxable, which included anything new.

Mother was on pins and needles when they went through her baggage and she was trying to show them the solid spots on three new dresses as if they understood her, but I presume they realized we had no use arguing with a woman who stuffed the dress back in the case as if they were really obsolete.

When they saw my portable typewriter, they must have thought it was a machine gun for they made me take it out of my case and work it for them. They had no trouble seeing that it was old and that the ribbon needed replacing, but they were in need of business and said thirty piastres. I hollered and told him that I didn't pay that much for it, and he told my interpreter that under those same conditions I should not mind paying the duty charges as the machine was worth more. The next country that tries to tax my machine will have a run out on Corona on their hands. After they had given me a receipt for my machine we were escorted to the Bonnard Hotel which is on a very nice plaza and just half a block from the sea. The proprietor smiled very suspiciously; so I cashed my checks at the hotel across the street.

The rooms of the hotel have no screens and the doors, for windows, on a little gallery as do most of the hotels of the Orient. The mosquitoes and flies must be bad for all beds are covered by mosquito bar with pretty embroidered edges for the insects to amuse themselves until you stick a foot or arm from under cover. Alexandria is a city of 500,000 people and consists of an old city and a new city. The natives continuing to live in the old part which is filled with old dilapidated buildings some of them five hundred years old, and narrow, dingy streets littered with stands of all kinds and small businesses as harness makers, blacksmiths and locksmiths. It looks like a bazaar or a vegetable market but filthy beyond belief of hygiene.

The large square stone streets are traveled by vehicle, ass, goat and pedestrian alike, and an occasional taxi horn will drive a dozen chickens, a goat or two and a night shirt clad native to protection in some shop. The newer part of town is modern and looks very much like an American city with its clean wide streets traveled by two-storied street cars. Many wealthy men live in this city and it is said by some to be the richest city in the Orient. Its wealth has been made from the export business, as all the cotton and grain of the Orient is handled through this port.

Egypt, in theory, has its own king and rules the country but it is openly admitted that the English have the O. K. on every law. Inasmuch as the money power of England has financed the rulers of Egypt for so many years that they have obtained great powers and privileges, and especially exercise control over collecting taxes and duties on exports and imports. Under this condition it is surprising to learn that the French language is the language of Egypt. Everyone speaks it, and in addition the natives speak Arabic. However much more English is spoken here than in France.

The system of money is very agreeable, and I was glad to tip away my last French money to get hold of some money with value and reason. The Egyptian money is copied as the English, and the commonest measure is the piastre which is five cents. A next is five p, which is the quarter, ten p, and one dollar which is twenty piastres. Then we have the pound which is the same as our five dollar bill; though actually worth $4.95. The smaller measure is the milliene, and ten milliene make a P.

As we took our first walk along the high concrete seawall which protects the city for miles from the high waters, we were approached by a hundred vendors. Fancy breads, fruits edible seeds, a dozen other knick knacks of peculiar shapes and distasteful odors. Oh, what a surprise to see the men wearing dirty gowns that drag the walks. Most of the men were barefooted, and some of their dirty muslin gowns it seems they wear underneath that blouses below the knees, but I wouldn't swear that they wear anything beneath the varicolored gowns.

The women all wear black as if in mourning, and there is no danger of anyone seeing their knees as the skirts sweep the ground. The married women by religious custom are forced to have a gilded spool cover their nose. It is suspended from their hair, and the lower part of the face is covered by a black veil. This is to prevent any other man from becoming infatuated with them.

The natives are still privileged to have two or more wives, but from the way they dress I don't see that they support one wife. Practically all the native women wear veils and hide some part of their face, and it is said that some of the women are so pious that a man other than their husband has never seen their faces. The Egyptian horses are nice to look at and their harness is elegant and span, while the women drag along lifeless, and without a glimmer of attractiveness.

As the natives Egyptians are Mohammedans by faith, and this faith does not teach cleanliness, the missionaries are having a difficult task of civilizing these people. They do not believe in doctors, sickness is a punishment from their God and should not be interfered with. I was not surprised when I saw a small lad pass me with his eyes covered with flies and no attempt to drive them away. He was a victim of one of Egypt's worst diseases. The Mohammedan's day of worship is Friday and on this day the old part of the city is neglected and shut down as far as business is concerned.

The Charm of the Orient on the Sidewalks

We were attracted by a Jewish synagogue which we were passing and without much ado entered and made ourselves at home; however we wanted to be sociable so Dad approached what appeared to be prominent members of the congregation and they did not seem to understand him in either English or Jewish. I thought perhaps he had made a mistake, but their prayer books were unmistakably Hebrew, then we realized that they only spoke Hebrew and not Jewish which we in America regarded as the language of the Jew. Dad recalled enough Hebrew words to have them understand that we were curious visitors, and the only thing that saved us from making a contribution was it being the Sabbath and they accept no money on this day.

It was a delight to know that on this very locality where the Jews were persecuted for years and years in an endeavor to break their religious beliefs, there existed a congregation of Gibraltari just like the Jews fled from Alexandria years ago rather than alter their belief or faith.

Out on the sidewalk a native was having his pet monkey go through the usual stunts, then quite suddenly he drew a snake from his pocket to be companion to the monkey. The snake was charmed but this gruesome sight had no charm for us, so we hurried to the hotel fearing lest he should produce other members from the wilds of the Nile. I was awake half the night in a cold sweat visualizing crocodiles in every corner of my room and thinking the flies were lizards wanting to share my bed.

I must mention that the Oriental has gotten the French habit of dining on the sidewalk. However, the native cares much less for strong drink and goes in more for soda waters and ices. Many vendors of cold drinks carried in an unbalanced on their heads are continuously marching the streets beckoning their prospective trade with a dyed glass. An strictly Oriental custom is to lounge at these outside tables and smoke one of the pipes which is offered the trade for one and a half piastre per smoke. It is a long pipe that might be mistaken for a Scotch bagpipe, but the pipe part leads to tobacco which is in a closed container, and the smoke is put into a can filled with water. I at first thought they were blowing bubbles but I later learned that this water purifies the smoke and make the inhalation much pleasanter if not more Ritzzy.

Oh, What Became of the Romans?

After the conquest of Egypt by the Romans this fellow Pompeii, one of the Roman generals had this immense column of stone in five pieces weighing 4,000 tons erected within the city of Alexandria for some reason which no one seems to be familiar with. The only interesting thing is how this immense piece of stone was hauled from the upper Nile before the days of railroads. Two Sphinx, early Roman idols, are near Pompeii's column, and if they have said a word in their years of residence no one seems to recall much of their life's history. Beneath these marble and stone relics are some catacombs which crumble with your touch. They were the burial places of early Egyptians and Romans, Roman bones and Egyptian mummies have been recovered. I took the guide's word and let him go to the museum to examine them or corroborate his remarks.

Then I went to the large catacombs which are supposed to be remarkable as they are of one piece of stone and are three flights in depth and are supposed to have been started in 300 B. C. and completed by the Romans 1,000 years later. The lower floor has been and still is flooded by an underground stream, but the two remaining floors reveal clay coffins filled with ancient nobles and kings bones. I stayed in the room near the door so I can't dispute him about the bones. Stone serpents and other ancient Gods which appeared moldy did not invite me away from the door and I thought Had the guide known that his tip would have been twice as large had he led us out then and there he would not have insisted that I come in farther to inspect some of the ancient scrolls. What do I care what those fellows wrote about? What I want is a Daily Sun and some news from Corsicana.

In Memoriam.

"To live in hearts we leave behind is not to die." Dora Spann was born October 15, 1859 at Nashville, Tenn. While still in her teens she moved to Texas. On March 24, 1885 she was united in marriage to Farney O'Daniel, at Roane, Texas. Rev. Mat Beasley officiating. To this union was born seven children, two girls and five boys: John O'Daniel, deceased, was one of the brave boys who went across and did his bit, but died shortly after he returned of pneumonia. Elmer and Jester O'Daniel of Corsicana, Oscar O'Daniel of Roane and Pate O'Daniel of Dallas; Mrs. Roy Beauchamp of Ennis and Miss Savannah O'Daniel, Corsicana. Two step-daughters, Miss Mamie O'Daniel of Corsicana and Mrs. Minnie Farrar of Chatfield.

Mrs. O'Daniel united with the Baptist church twenty-five years ago and has been a staunch member since.

Mrs. O'Daniel had been in bad health for some time but took her bed April 5, 1927 and died June 18, 1927. During those ten weeks of illness all that love, money and willing hands could do was done for her comfort, beside the loving care of the children, the family and friends, are deeply indebted to Mrs. Thornton, the nurse, for her devotion to her patient and the consolation to the heart-sore family. The doctors were sympathetic, and did all in human power to restore her to her normal health, but God saw her tired feet needed rest, after walking so much of life's thorny way and called her to rest.

The funeral services were held at the house Rev. C. E. McSturdevant of the Presbyterian church and Rev. Howard Williams of the First Baptist church officiating. The singers who were supposed to sing could not reach the house on account of the rain and mud, but Mr. Paul Harper, Mrs. Powell and Miss Lillie Powell, and Mrs. Hubbard stepped in to the breach and gave a beautiful rendition of the songs which were requested by the family, and were "Rock of Ages," "Asleep in Jesus," and "Nearer My God To Thee."

The out of town people attending the services were all of the old time friends from Montfort and Roane, and friends from the Shriners Lodge from Dallas but we were unable to learn their names. Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Sullivan, Mr. David Sullivan and family and Miss Flora Spray of Dallas.

N. E. Hawkins of Rice, Mrs. Fae Thomas of Mildred, Mr. and Mrs. Ross and children of Bardwell, Mrs. O. C. Gardner and baby daughter of Terrell, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Owens and Miss Alma Owens of Ennis, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Beauchamp and Mrs. P. E. Gerault all of Ennis and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nolan of Dallas.

As the great concourse of mourners wended their way to the last resting place of this beloved friend their heavy hearts were comforted by the beautiful flowers sent by friends, loved ones and the Washington Lodge of Dallas. If flowers could tell the sympathy of the givers I am sure they could tell in a better language than this frail human one of ours, the love, pity and sorrow that our trembling lips repeated. The flowers brought their silent message of hope and love and to the bruised heart their message is audible and these are the words: "Thy dead shall be raised incorruptible and we shall be changed and when we put on immortality then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written: Death is swallowed up in victory." And it is a victory for we know that there lies the shell of the outer man or just clay to feed the wonderful flowers, the soul which has passed on to bloom in a better land.

"Passing out of the shadows into eternal day. Why do we call it dying this sweet going away? With a cheerful smile and a wave of her hand she has wandered into an unknown land and left us dreaming how very fair it needs must be since she is there. Think of her then as the love of her. Think of her just the same I say she is not dead, she is just away."

To the children of my friend I bring to you the divine promise that has soothed thousands of breaking hearts, when the way is dark before us He knows, for He gave us assurance that He is near for He said: "Lo, I am with thee always, even unto the end." What more can be said?

"You are lonely and you miss her and you mourn her now she is dead."

But to spare you all the heartaches would you call her back again? Be not troubled by the notion Heaven is very far away.

It is nearer than you fancy; it is nearer than they know. 'Tis for them we bear this anguish, 'tis for them we stay alone. God has called them up to Heaven that they need not suffer more. To a father realm their flight have their loved ones flown. And they dwell in perfect splendor on that not so distant shore.

Once we watched them in their anguish once we saw them in their pain. Now to spare ourselves this heart ache should we call them back again?

To the dear friend and husband, our heart goes out in deepest sympathy for this great loss, and enfolded in your heart with the dear memory of her to let these words rest.

"One being, only one can know The holy strength I've learned from thee. All cares were sweet, all burdens light."

All crosses crown while thou wert here. Thou loved hath taught me how to live.

Thy gentle smile shall teach me how to die."

I know her spirit is ever near though unseen to guide you over the thorny pathway she has trod. As you face the sunset of life's day and your face to the glow and say in your heart: "Thy will be done."

"You ask me what is my Father's will?"

"The none of his sons should suffer ill. That all should be blessed with strength and health. Enveloped in peace and spiritual wealth. That all should rest in arms of love Fed with manna from Heaven above."

I have tried in my weak way to express the sympathy of grieving group of friends and ply from a message of love and pity from a heart that has been torn by the ruthless hands of death three times, and may God watch over and protect you and show you the way he would have you go, and may the spirit of your mother walk by His side in His care over you. Will she forget the ones she cared for?

Wept over, laughed over, hushed on her breast.

With her glad lullabies, into sweet rest? Babyhood's innocent rest? No, the true heart still faithful will be Fondly guard those that played with her knee.

Fly like a bird over death's sea To her darlings to be. Written by a friend,

MRS. J. T. BROWN.

NATION'S MELTING POT PRESIDED OVER BY SCHOOL TEACHER

By Associated Press.

Seattle, Wash., July 4.—The teacher is the master workman of the great melting pot from which pour the coming generations of American citizens. Dr. Francis G. Blair, president of the National Education Association told the 10,000 delegates and visitors at the first general session of the 65th annual convention of the organization here today.

"On this, the natal day of our republic," Dr. Blair said, "I believe that we can declare without hesitation that the perpetuity of this wide flung nation, its solidarity, its unity of aim and purpose and effort are more in the hands of the teacher than in any other one influence at work in America."

"As long as the five hundred thousand teachers of America are painting upon the canvas of the minds and hearts of twenty-five millions of children, the great American ideals, the great George Washington and Abraham Lincoln we can feel a large sense of security in the future of this republic."

J. B. Jones of Barry spent Friday in Corsicana on business.

MEMORIAL SERVICES DECEASED FOURTH ESTATES OF SOUTH

By Associated Press.

Stone Mountain, Ga., July 4.—Speaking at memorial services in the shadow of the Confederate Memorial, Josephus Daniels, publisher of the Raleigh, N. C. News and Observer, today paid tribute to the memory of seven members of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association who died in the past year.

"These names, not born to die, shine in our fraternal," he said.

Frank C. Bell, publisher of the Savannah News, Savannah, Ga.; Donald Gillis, editor of the Asheville Citizen; Asheville, N. C.; James H. Moore, editor of the Knoxville Sentinel, Knoxville, Tenn.; C. J. J. Mooney, editor of the Commercial Appeal, Memphis, Tenn.; A. E. Gonzales, publisher of the Columbia State, Columbia, S. C.; Lewis C. Humphreys, associate editor of the Herald-Post, Louisville, Ky.; Garard Harris, associate editor of the Birmingham News, Birmingham, Ala.

"It is truer of our profession than of any other that its contribution to is generation is impersonal," said Mr. Daniels. "Unseen they work like physicians, its members fight their battles and win their victories in the quiet hours of the night, with none over to know the vigils and the pouring out of the lifeblood."

Their very names and deeds are unknown. Like the faithful doctor, the chief reward of the editor is the consciousness of duty well done. Monuments and statues have been erected to those who command listening Senates and who lead men to battle, but you can count on the fingers of your hands such honors given to the conqueror in the sick chamber or the editor in his sanctum writing a drab hours after midnight the editorial to stir men to glorious deeds."

"It is to such heroes on the Fourth Estate we pause to do honor at this hour."

THOUSANDS VISIT NEW HOSPITAL AND CLINIC SATURDAY

Several thousand people from all parts of Navarro county and several adjoining counties attended the formal opening of the Corsicana Hospital and Clinic Saturday afternoon from 2 to 10 p. m. Many others visited the new enterprise Sunday and many visitors were still inspecting the building Monday.

The first patient in the new hospital was Baby Butler, fourteen-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Butler of Richland. The baby was a patient of Dr. L. E. Kelton and was brought here for medical treatment. Considerable rivalry existed among the doctors as to who should bring in the first patient.

From the opening hour at 2 p. m. Saturday, until long after the closing hour, people from Corsicana and vicinity came in throngs to visit Corsicana's latest hospital and clinic. They were met at the entrance by the doctors and trained attendants and taken on a tour of the building. All of the latest improvements were shown to the visitors, and many compliments were paid the founders of the new institution.

Refreshments were served the visitors after their tour of the building by the Johnson Drug Co. The attractive punch bowl located on the broad east porch. Music was furnished during the afternoon and evening by Phil Davis' orchestra.

The doctors declared themselves highly pleased with the way the people of Corsicana and Navarro county showed their interest in the new enterprise.

For 50 miles as the funeral train of the army flier proceeded from Ottawa toward Fenton, Mich., where burial will take place, Lindbergh flew low overhead in the Spirit of St. Louis and tossed out blossoms.

Then as Lindbergh headed back to Ottawa he waved a handkerchief from the small window of his plane in a last farewell to his fallen brother of the air.

SAN ANGELO BANK DEPOSITS SHOW BIG INCREASE; MANY CAUSES FOR PROSPERITY

By Associated Press.

San Angelo, Texas, July 4.—Interest in royalty on non-productive land has also brought a great deal of money into the local banks. Oil fee land in this section is just being developed. New fields in million dollars in total deposits in Crockett, Pecos, Upton, Howard, and the four banks of this city on June 30 call and put the total for all city at a new high mark for all time of $10,892,362.64.

Royalty from oil has played a small part in the prosperity here, but the average monthly income from rentals and bonus on lease in the last year has been estimated at $200,000 a month. The sale of day.

OLD FURNITURE IS SALVAGED

Iowa women demonstrating repairs to once discarded furniture. Time was when a decrepit rocking chair was relegated to the attic, never again to be disturbed except by explorations by small boys, spiders and bats. But extension workers of the United States Department of Agriculture are propounding the gospel of home economy. Their records show rural lofts fairly raining ancient and odd pieces of furniture. Through county home demonstration agents and local leaders, homemakers are learning to re-pair old tables and chair with paint, varnish, upholstery and reed. The operation, they say, is inexpensive, prolongs the use of really substantial furnishings and adds comfort and beauty to the home.

Small-Mouth Milk Pails Suggested For Cleanliness

Proper way of milking, using small-mouth pail, and other sanitary precautions.

Foreign substance clinging to the flanks and udder of a cow at milking time has been known to contain fifty million bacteria per gram.

For that reason dairymen suggest the use of a small-mouth milk pail, even if the cow is kept scrupulously clean.

"Too much precaution cannot be taken, they say, to keep loose hairs, pieces of bedding and other matter from falling into the pails to contaminate the milk."

Custom demands that a work horse be groomed daily, far more reason exists, dairymen declare, for the daily grooming of a cow that produces human food.

"They insist that before milking the udders, flanks and bellies of cows should be carefully wiped with a clean, damp cloth."

SIMPLE COSTUME FAVORED

What's wrong with this picture? Lot the United States Bureau of Home Economics answer:

"The sports costume at the left is all wrong. In the first place the criss-cross, zigzag effects on the many colored jacket do not harmonize with the up and down lines and colors of the skirt. The V-shaped vest of unsuitable lacy material and the open work of the shoes add to the jumble of lines, colors and spots of the whole outfit."

But the girl at the right demonstrates an approved outfit.

"Here," say the authorities, "is a two-piece dress that is plain and loose enough to permit free movement. The neutral color of the dress is relieved by two-tone bands of orange in blouse and skirt, running in the same direction and giving the dress pleasing lines. The tie and shoes are appropriate to the purpose for which a sports costume is worn."

"It seems incredible that anyone should want to wear such a combination as shown at the left, yet it is not uncommon."

AMERICANS LOST IN DENSE RAIN CLOUDS WHILE OVER FRANCE

By Associated Press.
London, July 1.—Commander Richard E. Byrd was completely lost in continuous dense rain clouds from the moment he left the French coast at Brest last night in his effort to find Paris, says a vivid story quoted by the American Evening News, by its Cherbourg correspondent.

Telling of the all-night battle of the America in a rain storm which ended with a cold plunge at 5 o'clock this morning in the sea at Ver-Sur-Mer, a tiny French bathing resort, Commander Byrd was quoted as saying: "I hoped to be able to find my way to Le Bourget by wireless and at one time, about 2:30 a. m. I must have passed very near Paris. All the way we were fighting our way through a blanket of mist and rain and couldn't see 50 feet ahead."

"We must have flown in circles for the most wireless call of which I picked up a fragment, showed that we were somewhere near

LT. G. T. JOHNSON FALLS TO DEATH AT OTTAWA FIELD TODAY

By Associated Press.

Ottawa, July 2.—Tragedy marked the arrival here this afternoon of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh to attend the Canadian diamond jubilee celebration when one of the airmen accompanying him fell to his death.

It was while the squadron was circling over the field that the plane driven by Lieutenant G. Thad Johnson crashed. There was great confusion around the flying field, and it was some moments before it was established that the pilot had been killed.

Colonel Lindbergh, who had already landed in his trans-Atlantic plane "Spirit of St. Louis" went to the spot and viewed the wreckage before taking his plane at the head of the procession which was formed to escort him to the capital.

His famous smile was replaced by an expression of sadness, which was reflected over the entire crowd of thousands of people who witnessed the accident. All the other planes, which had escorted Lindbergh from Selfridge Field, Detroit, landed safely.

Lieut. Johnson's plane was stated to have been thrown out of control by a collision with the plane immediately following him, when he suddenly changed his position in the formation.

While Lieut. Johnson's body was being taken from the field to the city in an ambulance mounted police and military units drew a cordon about the wrecked plane and with difficulty held back the crowds which surged toward the scene of the tragedy.

The American officer made a gallant effort to save his life when his plane began to fall. Spectators said that when he had shaken himself clear of his plane, he could be seen turning in the air as if trying to hasten the opening of his parachute. He was dead when the nearest spectator reached him.

By Associated Press.

Ottawa, July 2.—Lieut. G. Thad Johnson, a member of the escort of airplanes accompanying Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh to Ottawa, fell as the squadron was making its landing here. The first report was that he had been instantly killed.

Lieut. Johnson, attached to the first pursuit squadron at Selfridge Field, Detroit, was the only occupant of the plane. He is understood to have been a resident of Texas, but officials here were unable to name his home town.

According to the aviator in the plane immediately behind Lieut. Johnson, the latter's machine, which he had been circling with the others over the field, dipped suddenly as though preparing to land. However, instead of continuing downward, it rose to resume its position in the squadron formation.

The pilot behind, not anticipating this, ran into Johnson's plane, forcing the tail violently upward. The machine immediately went into a nose dive, at a height of only about 100 feet.

Lieut. Johnson swung himself clear, but there was not time for his parachute to open before his body struck the ground.

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 2.—Lieut. J. Thad Johnson, one of the Selfridge Field, Mich., pilots, had served for nearly ten years in the army air service.

He began in the original air service, when it was a branch of the signal corps, enlisting in August of 1917. He was commissioned a first lieutenant in July of 1920, and since then has served at various air stations. He was born in Texas, in July, 1893.

War Department records give only the name of his wife, Edith Naylor, deceased, whose home was at Blackwell, Okla.

Johnson Native Of Terrell, Texas

By Associated Press.

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 2.—Lieut. G. Thad Johnson, killed today at Ottawa, Canada in the crash of an airplane in which he was escorting Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Johnson of Terrell, Texas. It was said by Mrs. Blanch C. Naylor, mother of his deceased first wife.

Mrs. Naylor said he was one of a party of fliers that made the first trans-continental flight from New York to San Francisco in 1919 and that the fatal crash today was the first serious accident in which he had figured.

HONOLULU FLIERS LEARN THEIR LIFE RAFT WAS DEFECTIVE

By Associated Press.

Honolulu, July 1.—The aerial path of glory from the Golden Gate to Hawaii might easily have led to a watery grave for Lieutenants Lester J. Maitland and Albert Heinenberger.

Submitting to unofficial questioning as to just how they negotiated the 2,400 mile over-water journey by air, the army fliers today learned that the pneumatic life boat which they had carried might never have been usable because of defects.

When the fliers returned to Wheeler Field late yesterday during an intermission in the round of social functions in their honor to inspect their monoplane they unpacked the remaining equipment including the rubber boat and a flask of compressed air with which to inflate it.

A newspaper photographer, in spite of a desire to make pictures of the fliers in the rubber craft, suggested its inflation.

Its valve was no more than open than the hose connecting the compressed air flask with the boat burst, wasting the stored atmosphere.

"Oh, well, you had a pump," some one commented.

"But when we'd have had to use a pump," he commented.

Shortly after their inspection still unfinished, they left the field to return to Honolulu for a dinner again with the public reception to follow.

Lieutenants Maitland and Heinenberger received letters and congratulatory messages including felicitations from James D. Dolc, and Governor Fuller of Massachusetts.

Governor Zimmerman of Wisconsin offered Lieut. Maitland a colonelcy in the Wisconsin National Guard.

Lieut. Col. John H. Howard, chief of the air corps of the Hawaiian department of the army, declared that the flight by Maitland and Heinenberger indicated "that without question commercial aviation flights between Hawaii and the mainland and between America and Europe are but a short distance away."

GUARDS, BOLTS, SEALS PROTECT U. S. CROP REPORT FROM LEAKS

Top—Federal Crop and Livestock Reporting Board. W. F. Callender, chairman is at upper end of table. From his right, members are: C. F. Searle, J. B. Shepard, S. A. Jones, C. E. Gage, A. J. Surratt, J. S. Dennee and J. A. Becker.

Bottom—Press representatives on their marks 15 minutes before release of crop report.

A United States marshal stands guard for the first word. When the report is finished a tabulated sheet is laid, face down, beside each phone. None is allowed to see it. A timekeeper calls each man to his mark. Nerve-taut, they stand, neither having slightest advantage. "Go!" they spring to their wires, and shortly the quantity, quality and value of crops are known wherever a newspaper is read.

To the crop reporters themselves the incident means nothing but work. If preparing a forenoon release, they assemble at 5:30 a. m. Their breakfast is sent in to them. If the report is finished before schedule its release must be held in confidence until the designated hour.

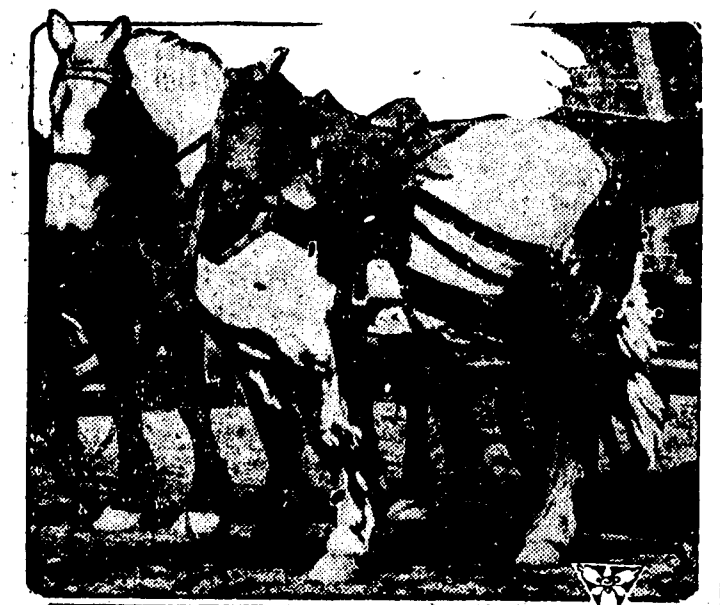

There is no end to precaution. Even the window glass will not catch a shadow. It is of special construction, to guard against silhouetted signals. No one may enter the room except department employees. Once inside they must remain until the board's work is done. Figures showing crop estimates by states are given to typists unidentified. The names of the states are added at the last moment. Estimates sent in by field men, which the board consider and debate before reaching a conclusion, go into a special mail box to which Secretary of Agriculture Jardine has the only key.

Crop reporting by the United States Department of Agriculture has almost trebled in scope since 1920. It takes 38 typewritten pages just to list the reports that are made in one year. More than 300,000 voluntary crop reporters, most of them farmers, supply information for the department with no other compensation than the knowledge they are contributing information of financial value to themselves and to other producers. From their reports approximately 50,000 separate estimates and reports are issued annually.

Ninety per cent of the farmers who replied to a questionnaire said they found the crop reports of practical value.

Farm Harness Still Serviceable After 34 Years in Use

Making work-horse harness last fifty years is still a farm experiment.

However, the Department of Agriculture has on record four sets, 34 years old.

"With continued good care they should last another 20 years," experts declare it.

The long life of the harness is attributed to careful selection and proper treatment. Each set was purchased for its sturdy construction, and promptly altered to fit the horse that wore it.

When not in use the harness is hung on pegs, safe from jostling and tramping. Special care is taken to prevent the collars from breaking. Surfaces that press against the horse are cleaned daily with a fresh, damp cloth.

Broken portions of the harness have been mended as the breaks occurred. For such purpose the owner keeps a repair kit consisting of a knife, riveting machine, 4-tube punch, pliers, awls, an assortment of needles, thread wax, a wood clamp, leather, snaps, buckles and cleaning and oiling materials.

At least once annually the harness is overhauled thoroughly. Weak portions are replaced with strong material. For the cleaning process each set is soaked fifteen minutes in lukewarm water in which a mild soap and a little soda have been dissolved.

Each strap is scrubbed and rinsed well. When nearly dry, edge blacking is rubbed on portions that require it. All metal parts are cleaned. While the leather is still damp it is oiled with neat's-foot oil, castor oil, or a prepared harness oil, rubbed in well and allowed to dry slowly. When dry the leather is rubbed with castile soap lather or harness soap to remove surface oil and grease.

Cutworm, Creature Of Night, Killed By Poisoned Bran

Top—Cutworm feasting on tobacco plant.
Below—Cabbage plant destroyed by nocturnal visit of cutworms.
Right—Cutworm moth.

Cutworms, foes of the truck patch, are night time bandits.

Their depredations show next morning when the sun white the seedling tomatoes, the cabbage leaves, lettuce and melons eaten during nocturnal revelry.

The cutworm is the young, or caterpillar, of the night-flying moth. His whole life is made up of darkness. The exception is observed on cloudy, gloom-cast days, when the worm may come out from a convenient hole in the ground to feast upon young, tender plant leaves and stalks.

The moth lays its eggs upon plants or other objects and in some cases directly on the ground. The eggs hatch into cutworms of many descriptions. The commoner ones are stout, soft-bodied, smooth or nearly smooth, and cylindrical. They vary in color from gray to brown or nearly black, and sometimes are spotted or marked with stripes.

Many kinds of cutworms go through the winter in the soil and begin work again early in the spring. In addition to vegetable crops they attack ornamental plants and field crops.

It's a slow process, but cutworms may be found individually and killed—after their night's damage is done.

They are invariably fed by using a poisoned bran bait. A reliable mixture is one peck or one pound of bran; one-fourth pound of white arsenic or Paris green, cases directly on the ground. The one pint of syrup molasses and eggs hatch into cutworms of many three or four quarts of water. For more extensive use the ingredients are stout, soft-bodied, smooth or nearly smooth, and cylindrical. United States entomologists warn that it is necessary to thoroughly mix the poison and the bran so that each particle will carry enough poison to kill. The syrup and water should be mixed, and then added to the mixed bran and poison. Still begin work again early in the spring. In addition to vegetable crops they attack ornamental plants and field crops.

The bait should be placed along the rows or about the base of the plant in the evening. Care should be taken to keep mixture away from animals or irresponsible pet—after their night's damage is done.

Scab and Brown Rot Combine In Causing Heavy Peach Losses

By Associated Press.

Those small dark blotches on the skin of a peach are not sun freckles.

They're cladosporium carpophilum, otherwise fungus bred scabs, known wherever peaches are grown. Only the driest regions of the world escape.

In its power to damage, scab is a "yes man" for brown rot, a common peach disease which, prior to 1924, caused an annual loss of 3-500,000 bushels.

It starts on the peach as a faintly green, poorly defined spot. Later it becomes olivaceous to black and in advanced stages forms a scabby area which frequently splits open, leaving an entrance for brown rot spores.

Scab attacks other stone fruits, such as plum and cherries. The spots usually form first near the twig, causing the fruit to fall to the ground. Their chief destruction arises in the Appalachian High lands. Scab develops slowly and rarely destroys a crop.

Brown rot, however, may cause serious loss in humid sections of the Eastern United States. It is a menace in Central Georgia. Like scab, it is a product of fungus, sclerotinia fructicola. It is a common rot of peaches, plums and other stone fruits and at first is visible as a tiny brown speck which deepens into the flesh.

Fungus causing brown rot is able to penetrate the unbroken skin of the peach, but when weather conditions are not especially favorable to the disease it more commonly enters through wounds and particularly through the punctures made by the plum curculio, or peach worm.

Rot, scab, and curculio can be controlled by spraying and dusting through the growing season. Direction for the application of sprays and dusts, together with the various formulas, are supplied by the United States Department of Agriculture.

TEXAS BUILDING ON SOUND BASIS ACCORDING TO REPORT INVESTMENT BANKERS NORTH

Special to the Sun.

Chicago, Ill., July 4.—Building in Texas is on a sound basis. While the volume of building in that state has been declining, the actual volume remains large and with the possibilities for state-wide development in the next few years building should continue to reflect a healthy condition.

This was the opinion expressed in a special survey of S. W. Straus & Co., investment bankers, who have just completed a study of business conditions in that state.

Texas is a veritable empire of opportunity. With her expense of rich farm land, with her cotton, oil and shipping interests this state is undoubtedly due for many progressive steps in the next few years. Evidence of the faith that is being placed in Texas may be shown by the citation of the volume of loans S. W. Straus & Co. has made in the last few years in Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio. This figure, approximately $25,000,000 which has been used in providing needed building facilities for these rapidly expanding cities.

Investigation of business conditions in Texas brings out the soundness of the present development. As in all commercial progress, there are side eddies or promotion propositions that lack solidarity, there will naturally be temporary recessions in Texas, as have from time to time been experienced in all great commonwealths. But with increasing population, modern methods of agriculture, higher standards of living, and a keen desire on the part of its people to capitalize their opportunity, Texas has come to the fore in keeping with the recent development of the industrial South.

Because building is an accurate index of general business conditions, it is safe to say, especially in view of her underlying industries that Texas is not passing through a boom but rather is building upon a sound economic base. Her commercial interests furnish a backbone, particularly for building construction which must be cared for to meet its expanding trade activity.

Over the country generally building activity has been on the decline and Texas building reflects the same tendency. The fundamental factors that are responsible for the great cities of Dallas, El Paso, Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio are still present, however, and may be expected to be a continuing basis for business prosperity in that state.

Texas On Honor Roll

Texas for the last year and a half has placed consistently in the honor list of the twelve leading states in point of building volume. This record may be taken as an index of the tremendous development that has an its taking place in the Lone Star State.

According to the national monthly building survey of S. W. Straus & Co., Texas ranked seventh in January 1926. In that same year Texas for nine months ranked tenth, for one month ninth and for one month eleventh.

For the first five months this year this state has ranged from eighth to eleventh place. Large building volumes have been maintained in Amarillo, Dallas, El Paso, Fort Worth, Galveston, Houston, San Antonio, and Wichita Falls. In 1926 Houston led all other cities of the state in building volume, which permits filed for $25,511,675; in the preceding year Houston again led the state with a volume of $35,640,010.

The accompanying chart shows how the leading cities have ranked for the last five years and for the

PORTO RICANS DO NOT WANT TO LOSE THEIR INDIVIDUALITY

THIS IS STATEMENT OF DR. BUTTE, ATTORNEY GENERAL FOR PORTO RICO

By Associated Press.

Austin, Texas, July 4.—Regardless of the divided Porto Rican opinions as to how their government should be run, all are agreed in the wish to perpetuate their own individual national character, and not become Anglicized, Dr. George C. Butte, attorney general of Porto Rico, says here.

Dr. Butte, former dean of law school of Texas University, is here on his vacation, and has been mentioned as a prospective president of the institution to succeed W. M. W. Splawn, resigned.

"Some Porto Ricans," Dr. Butte said, "think they should have an autonomy, others want a state but they all want to retain their individual characteristics and don't want to be made Anglo-Saxon."

He reviewed the pressing national problems as to the future form of government, how to take care of the over-population and educate the natives.

Porto Rico, he said, has 1,400,000 people, or an equivalent of 38 persons per square mile. These include 200,000 negroes, 200,000 mulattoes and 1,000,000 Spanish, who dominate the language and customs.

Lack of natural resources, since the mahogany and walnut forests have been depleted, has turned efforts to intensify agriculture, including raising of sugar cane, tobacco and coffee.

Attempts at education find the Anglo-Saxon and Latin civilizations clashing, however, the students are obliged to turn suddenly to English. Proceeding in the insular courts are in Spanish while those in the Federal are in English. "Then there is the clash," Dr. Butte continued, "between the old patriarch idea of labor and the ideas championed by the American Federation of Labor. The former makes peons of the servants while the other frees them from peonage."

A Remarkable Faith

The public has shown, by its response to HENRY FORD'S announcement of a NEW FORD CAR, its FAITH in the genius of the man who satisfied transportation needs for 23 years. During 18 years of that time 15 million MODEL T FORD CARS were built—An average yearly production of over 832,000 cars and trucks.

While the year 1926 was not a good automobile year generally, it was a very satisfactory year for the Ford factory—Ford production for 1926 running 46 per cent of all cars built in the United States.

Fords domestic and foreign output for 1926 was 1,629,000 units.

GREAT DIFFICULTIES MET BY AMERICANS IN FLIGHT OVER ATLANTIC

By Associated Press.

Paris, July 1.—The trans-Atlantic flight of Commander Byrd, after hard luck and tremendous difficulties, ended just after dawn today in the sea 200 yards from the beach of the little seaside resort of Ver-Sur-Mer, 125 miles west of Paris.

The aviators swam ashore and immediately went to sleep in a little cottage to which they were taken. The monoplane America was badly damaged—badly awaited determination until the worn-out fliers should have a good sleep.

From the advices reaching Paris, it appeared the plane came down at 4:45 o'clock which would mean they were in the air 43 hours 21 minutes from the time they left Roosevelt Field, N. Y., with Paris as the goal.

Faced Death Many Times.

Presumably the fliers faced death in their flight that lasted for almost two days. For hours over the Atlantic they were unable to see the ocean nor determine with any accuracy except with the aid of the radio, just where they were. On three occasions even the time of the wings was obscured from the anxious man in the pilot's seat.

But it was over land itself that the greatest peril came. In the darkness of a rainy and stormy night, when their compass failed to work, they literally wandered about high in the air, seeking a place to come down. The radio guided them over the sea, but somehow it failed on land. When their own signals were heard, as they were at frequent intervals, the receiving station was unable to tell their position in the sky.

Unable to Answer Appeal.

The most critical time of all came when it seemed to all observers that they must be over Paris searching through clouds and fog for the lights of the Le Bourget Field. Then their signals ceased. At last, at 1:25 o'clock in the morning, came an appeal for guidance. But no one knew where they were and help was impossible. Anxious watchers aground, forced to wait helplessly through out the remaining hours of darkness, unable even to guess where the plane had gone.

The reports from Ver-Sur-Mer indicate that they actually were over Paris at 3 o'clock in the morning, and that for some reason yet unexplained, they turned about and went westward again. The last place the plane was actually seen was at Brest, about 200 miles west of the spot where it came down. That was at 8:33 p. m. when the French Cable Company announced it had clearly seen the distinguishing marks of the craft.

Many Correct Reports.

After that the air was filled with all sorts of incorrect reports that the plane had been sighted, even that it had landed safely at Isey Les Moulineux. The landing at Isey was announced by Commandant Renouise of Le Bourget air field, and the prefect of police, who later admitted that their information was erroneous.

The night was one of the worst of the season in Paris. Rain fell in torrents, the clouds hung low and thickly, the sea was low and was completely hidden as the earth must have been to the men in the plane. Contrary winds whirled about, and as hour after hour passed the watchers were sure the plane had either been forced down or crashed at some spot in the fields or forests that surrounded Paris.

Among those who anxiously awaited news were Sheldon Whitehouse, charge d'affaires of the American Embassy in the absence of Ambassador Herrick; Captain Richard E. White, the naval attaché; H. A. Gibbons, personal representative of Rodman Wana-maker, backer of the flight, and government officials. Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, who know the dangers of the trans-Atlantic voyage also were there.

French Government Active.

As the night wore on without definite news, the French Ministry of Interior issued instructions that a complete search be made immediately of all four departments to the south of Paris in the belief that the fliers had been forced to alight at some isolated spot. The search had hardly been under way, however, when the news came that the aviators were safe at Ver-Sur-Mer. First it was in a form like the false reports of the night and was received with skepticism, then details, meagre to be sure, began arriving from point after point, and finally corroboration that made it true beyond a doubt.

Then Mr. Gibbons and Captain White left for the seaside resort, expecting to arrive there some time in the afternoon. They will bring the airman to Paris.

Meanwhile it became known that the commander of the port of Caen with the co-operation of the Cherbourg naval authorities, had gone to Ver-Sur-Mer in a naval tug to save the plane. They reported that the machine was badly damaged and that they found the landing gear broken. When they made the examination at 11 a. m. it was high tide, but they hoped the craft could be kept anchored until low water.

Message received here from Ver-Sur-Mer indicated that Commander Byrd and his three companions assisted themselves ashore from the America by a pneumatic lift belt which they managed to inflate before their plane alighted on the sea.

R. M. McKay of Waxahachie was in the city attending to business Friday.

W. M. Dugan of Fort Worth was in the city on business Friday.

COOLIDGE SENDS CONGRATULATIONS TO NAVAL FLYER

By Associated Press.

Washington, July 1.—The congratulations of President Coolidge were cabled to Commander Byrd today by the State Department.

"I send you sincere congratulations on your successful flight across the Atlantic," the message said.

"I have followed your distinguished and courageous career in aerial navigation with interest and admiration. Your flight to the North Pole proved the effectiveness of the aeroplane in adding to the scientific knowledge of the unexplored surface of the world, and I am sure that your present flight will notably advance our knowledge of the conditions which must be met and conquered to make trans-Atlantic aerial navigation commercially practicable and safe."

BANKERS-BUSINESS MEN JOIN FARMERS STOP LOW PRICES

By Associated Press.

Dallas, Texas, July 4.—Bankers and business men joined hands with Texas farmers in preliminary organization for prevention of low cotton prices today in a meeting, called by the Farmers' Marketing Association of America here.

The delegates are expected to form plans for "throwing off the yoke of the tyranny of low cotton prices." A paper prepared by Fred W. Davis of Austin, president of the State branch of the Marketing Association, who was not present, and read by I. T. Alfred, Davis' representative, for stabilizing grade and staple cotton. Davis' paper asserted that "cotton is sold under terms of bankruptcy which the farmer must accept."

In his plan for stabilization of the market, Mr. Davis suggested that two samples be taken from each bale of cotton ginned. One sample would be kept by the owner and the other would be sent to the bonded warehouse where it is proposed the cotton would be sold. Records of the grade would be kept and later checked by the present government grading experts. Sale would be made on grades determined in this fashion.

The America carried the first pouch of official trans-Atlantic air mail. In addition the plane carried a package containing two American flags for presentation to President Doumergue of France. Tom Weaver of Montfort was in the city Friday attending to business.

JUDGE SCARBOROUGH CHARGES GRAND JURY ON LIQUOR MATTERS

By Associated Press.

Particular stress was paid in the investigation relative to the violation of the prohibition laws in Navarro county by Hawkins Scarborough, judge of the Thirteenth Judicial District Court, Monday morning in his charge to the grand jury impaneled for the July term of the court which was formally opened Monday. In his charge, the court stated in the beginning that there was nothing particular to be investigated at this time but that he was impaneled the grand jury to aid in the keeping of the laws from being violated as if there was not a grand jury at this term, the violators could not be tried before the October term or possibly the January term of the district court.

In getting the balliffs for the jury, the court advised the investigators to select those men who were well-acquainted in the various communities. He admonished the jury to look after all law violations. He stated that he earnestly wanted to see the prohibition laws enforced. He stated, however, that Navarro county was in as good condition with reference to liquor violations as was Hill, Limestone, Freestone, Henderson and other adjoining counties, but that there was entirely too much liquor in this county. He referred to the large number of alleged violators who had been sent to the penitentiary from Navarro county in prohibition cases during the last two terms of court, but there were plenty remaining here. He stated that the majority of the liquor in this county is brought in from other counties via automobiles and stressed the importance of catching those who bring the liquor into the county in that manner, the officers will be hitting at the source of supply.

Speaking of the "choc" beer situation, the court advised the investigators that there were one or two things necessary to convict a person in connection with beer. It must be proven that either the beer would make a person drunk, or that it contained at least 1 percent of alcohol by volume. He stated that the commissioners' court had provided for the analyzing of the beer.

Gambling halls, "bawdy" houses, murder, rape, arson and other violations of the laws were referred to by the court.

He stressed secrecy on the deliberations of the grand jury and told them that a man had a right to appear when being investigated and have witnesses, but he warned the investigators against discussing the pending investigations outside of the jury room with persons interested in the same. "Bring him before the jury and let him testify if he wants to," the court continued.

Judge Scarborough announced to the members of the bar that only criminal cases and non-jury cases would likely be tried during the ensuing term of court. He stated that he would attend the State Bar Association meeting at Houston later in the week. A number of the members of the bar also signified their intention of going to the convention in Houston.

J. P. Vickery of Dawson was appointed foreman of the grand jury. Other members of the jury are O. M. Boynton, Corsicana; Robert Davidson, Corsicana; Homer Carroll, Kerens; M. Sherman Miles, Rice; J. O. Cheney, Corsicana; E. A. Keeling, Rushing; C. C. Roberts, Corsicana; R. W. Varnell, Barry; Joe Parrish, Embouse; W. E. Slaughter, Corsicana; T. J. Slay, Fort.

W. E. (Zeke) Slaughter of Corsicana was elected secretary of the grand jury. Balliffs elected were R. S. Petty, door balliff; Walter Hayes, Corsicana; Allen Calloway, Corsicana; R. A. Edens, Rice; Moody Orr, Kerens; George B. Jones, Dawson; W. S. Bell, Eureka; J. B. Ingle, Richmond; R. M. Allright, Barry; and L. W. Thrash, Blooming Grove, all riding balliffs.

MEMORIAL SERVICE SUNDAY MORNING FOR BELOVED TEACHER

MEMORY OF MRS. S. M. ROUGHTON HONORED BY SPECIAL SERVICES

Memorial services were held at the opening exercises of the Young People's Department of the First Methodist church Sunday morning in memory of Mrs. S. M. Roughton, a teacher in the department for almost twenty years. A number of talks and special music made up the program.

Mrs. George E. Jester, a fellow worker in the department for many years, was in charge of the program. In her introductory talk, she paid tribute to Mrs. Roughton's faithfulness, her untiring efforts to better the department, her uncompensated service, her cheerfulness, her patriotism, her civic pride, and her influence over the young men of her Sunday School class.

Another tribute from a fellow teacher and clubwoman was given by Mrs. Clyde Foster. Speaking of the town's and the Sunday School's loss in Mrs. Roughton's death, Mrs. Foster pointed out that death had given admittance to a greater field of service where visions might be realized. Her life held all of the qualifications of citizenship in a greater world, enthusiasm, courage, purposefulness, spirit of fellowship, and unwavering faith in all those with whom she came in contact.

"It was a privilege of friendship to have worked with her and had her here with us. It was our privilege to know her and feel her abiding influence."

Mrs. Andy Autry, accompanied at the piano by Miss Catherine Treadwell, sang "I Shall See Him." Neal Walton, a member of Mrs. Roughton's class for seventeen years, paid tribute to her as one of "her boys." Mrs. Roughton was one of the greatest inspirations of my life, and I feel that I was blessed by her presence and my associations with her.

"Her faith in her boys was as strong as her faith in her family. She never doubted them. One of the great secrets of her influence was her kind words, which every one knew were backed up by kind thoughts."

"No one has given more service to the boys of Corsicana than Mrs. Roughton, and her memory is an inspiration to all who have known her. No matter how busy or how sorely tried she might be, she did not forget her boys, and all through the war, her boys heard from her regularly; and the same was true in everyday life, she knew her boys when she saw them and had a kind word for them."

"Because of her service to all mankind, she is a good example for us to follow."

PANAMA CANAL HAS ESTABLISHED HIGH RECORD FOR SHIPS

By Associated Press.
Panama, July 2.—The Panama Canal established a new high record for commercial transits during the fiscal year just ended. The waterway was used by 5,475 vessels. The previous record was established during the calendar year of 1926, when the transits totalled 5,422.

Since the opening of the canal in August, 1914, to the close of business on June 30, 1927, a total of 40,377 commercial ships passed through, paying $166,363,228 in tolls.

NEW HOSPITAL AND CLINIC OPENED FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION

Several hundreds people attended the formal opening of the Corsicana Hospital and Clinic Saturday afternoon, when the doors of Corsicana's latest addition for the alleviation of suffering and benefit to the health of the citizens opened its doors to the general public. Many beautiful floral tributes and messages of congratulation were received by the doctors during the day.

Visitors flocked to the new building soon after the doors were formally opened and continued in a steady stream during the afternoon. As soon as the visitors entered the building, they were taken in charge by trained attendants and taken on a tour of inspection through the building, beginning with a visit through the doctors' offices, the electrotherapy room, the X-ray room, and then to the second floor and through the operating room, obstetric room, the private rooms and wards, and the diet kitchen.

Johnson Drug Company had on display on the porch of the new hospital a miniature prescription counter, equipped with all of the essentials for filling prescriptions promptly. Included in the display was a jardiniere or vase which was used for years as the sign of an apothecary's shop. The sign consists of two globes mounted one above the other, filled with fluids. The lower globe contained a green solution that was put in the container by E. A. Johnson, founder of the company, more than forty-nine years ago when the receptacle was secured from England and first put on display. The second globe contained the American colors of the red, white and blue.

The visitors were served with refreshments from the punch-bowl provided over by Mrs. C. C. Weatherly and Miss Lettie McLeod.

Music was furnished during the afternoon and evening by Phil Davis' orchestra.

Among those sending floral tributes were: Mrs. John Murray McGee, Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Cerr, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Elliott, Louis Daniels, Cason Floral Company, Glove Floral Company, State National Bank, First State Bank, the Navarro Hospital and Clinic, Central State Bank, Mrs. Sue Castles, Mrs. Lindsey, Mrs. R. C. Curtis, Mrs. L. E. Kelton, Mrs. W. T. Shell, Mrs. W. K. Logan, Mr. and Mrs. Beaufo Jester, Mrs. W. J. Rochelle, Mrs. Houston, W. H. Jack, Mrs. E. S. McGee, Mrs. W. R. Sneed, Mrs. Theodore Ferguson, Mrs. W. F. Love, Johnson Drug Company, Penland Drug Company, Corsicana Chamber of Commerce.

The Sutherland ambulance was parked at the patients' entrance where demonstrations were given showing the manner in which ambulance patients were taken care of in entering the building.

Kentucky Woman Had "Terrible Time" Doing Her Home Work. Strength Returned After She Took Cardui.

Sheelville, Ky.—"Several years ago," says Mrs. Alven Jesse, of this place, "my health was very bad. I was very much run-down. I was in such a weak, nervous condition that I was not able to do my housework. I struggled to keep up, but I had to, but many a time I spent hours in bed, trying to force enough strength to go through the daily routine."

"This condition went on for some time, until I heard about Cardui which some one told me was good for such cases. I gave it an immediate trial, and I am thankful to say, my improvement was rapid. I soon was able to do my housework with ease and comfort. I felt fine and I looked so much better."

"This spring I was not as well as I had been. I was ill in the winter with colds, which left me weak. So I sent at once to the store for Cardui and began taking it. In just a little while I was feeling much better, my strength returned and I was able to get my work done easier and with less effort."

ROAD REPORTS ARE GIVEN TO ENQUIRERS BY LOCAL CHAMBER

With the summer season on many Corsicana people are making extended motor trips and the Chamber of Commerce Highway Information Department is daily receiving requests for long distance routings.

The Chamber of Commerce was in receipt Friday of late reports on the Mississippi Valley Section. It is reported that there is no crossing on the Mississippi south of Helena, Arkansas, with the exception of New Orleans. The Old Spanish Trail to New Orleans via St. Charles and Lafayette is now open. There is a thirty-five mile ferry at Berwick on this route with a charge of $10.00. Considerable ferrying is also necessary at the Helena crossing. It is probable that the road to Vicksburg will be open in from two to three weeks.

Reporting on the road from Corsicana to Tucuman, New Mexico, O. C. Henderson, with the R. L. Hamilton party, writes as follows: "Roads from Corsicana to Snyder, Texas, show a speedometer reading of 326 miles via Fort Worth, Mineral Wells, Breckenridge, Albany, Anson, Roby and Snyder, with a payment for about 240 miles and the rest of the mileage in excellent condition. The drive from Snyder to Tucuman was made in one day via Lubbock, Muleshoe, Bovina, Clovis and Tucuman. The stretch of dirt and gravel was found in good condition and Mr. Henderson says that anyone following this route will make no mistake."

The highway from Houston to Beaumont is now fully paved.

The routing by way of Athens, Jacksonville, Rusk, Nacogdoches, Lufkin, Jasper, Silsbee, to Beaumont is reported to be in very good condition. Direct reports from Corsicana motorists going to Kansas City show that the route by Dallas, Sherman, Denison, Muskogee, Tulsa, Bartlesville and Independence is in good condition.

Sund time was also being made on the route to Chicago by way of Dallas, Denison, Muskogee, Silsbee, Lebanon, Bourbon, St. Louis, Springfield, Lincoln, Bloomington, Joliet and Lyons.

Road conditions generally in Texas were reported in very fair shape Friday.

The Corsicana Chamber of Commerce maintains an accurate road reporting service and this, together with maps, is available free to the public.

In Memory of Mrs. R. L. Killingsworth.

I am thinking today,

Of a friend who on the 21st of May,

Departed this life,

To join a world that knows no strife.

She was a good wife and mother,

There will never be another,

With her sweet smiling face,

To fill her vacant place.

The friends of this town,

Have already found,

With tearful eyes and hearts sad,

They have lost one of the dearest friends they had.

She was an inspiration to youth,

And they could say with truth,

"I wish to be like her some day."

Win every heart that comes my way."

She was the friend of all,

Both large and small,

Together old and young,

Her praises have sung.

We should not weep,

Because we know she is only asleep,

At rest and free from pain,

Our loss is Heaven's gain.

The last look at her calm, sweet face,

Proved she had run a good race,

Had fought a good fight,

And was going to the home of Light.

AMERICA LANDED SAFELY AFTER AN EPOCHAL VOYAGE

By Associated Press.
New York, July 1.—Out of gasoline and groping blindly through fog and rain to find a safe haven, the trans-Atlantic plane America descended safely in the sea early this morning near this town on the coast of Normandy.

Successful in their valiant effort to span the Atlantic, but 175 miles west of their goal, Paris, the American aviators headed by Commander Richard E. Byrd made their way through the seas 200 yards to shore with the aid of a pneumatic raft which they had been able to inflate just before their plane struck the water.

Tired by their long air voyage that had carried them across the Atlantic and in a vain cruise in the fog and rain above France to find the flying field at LeBourget, the American fliers went to bed almost as soon as they had made their way to shore with the help of fishermen and the keeper of the lighthouse here.

Drop Into Sea Early Friday.

It was about 2:30 a. m. French time that the American fliers, seeking land and safety after their long voyage through the air, dropped into the sea about 200 yards from shore and were quickly into the water to their elbows.

Straining their rubber rowboat, they were aided by the equipment of the plane they made several trips to shore, saved all the most important equipment of their ship and then went to sleep at the homes of their French hosts who took them in with gracious hospitality.

Only the top edge of the plane's wing was above the surface of the sea, but the fliers, their minds once more easy after their long battle with fog and rain, slept peacefully until called at 3 o'clock this afternoon at their lodgings.

Byrd Writes Log of Flight.

Commander Byrd, who had added to his laurels of being the first man to fly across the North Pole the new distinction of spanning the Atlantic, true unsuccesfully, under favorable circumstances, was very tired but was not too tired to write up his log of the flight.

He chatted with his hosts and drank a glass of milk before retiring in the home of Joseph Croffier, deputy mayor of Ver-Sur-Mer.

Commander Byrd declared on arriving in this little picturesque resort, that the America had encountered bad weather all the way from the United States.

Fog had kept them from finding the air lane to Paris and had forced them to grope blindly in the air until they had no choice but to make a descent as best they could when their gasoline ran out.

With things made as ship shape, the American aviators divided into two groups, going to different houses, to obtain much needed rest.

Commander Byrd and Lieutenant George O. Noville, radio engineer and alternate pilot, went to the home of the deputy mayor, while Bert Acosta the pilot, and Lieut. Berndt Balchen, the fourth member of the crew, went to the home of the lighthouse keeper, Lercep.

They were sound asleep in a few minutes and their hosts set up a guard to keep them from being disturbed.

Flyers Will Be X-Rayed to Find Extent of Hurts

Paris, July 2.—Commander Richard E. Byrd, Lieutenant George O. Noville and Bert Acosta will be X-rayed this afternoon under the direction of Dr. Bainbridge, who says that the three men all have evidence of contusions as a result of their descent into sea at Ver-Sur-Mer yesterday morning.

Commander Byrd, Dr. Bainbridge said, has a contusion of the chest. The commander is unable to speak loudly and was still clearly exhausted today. He entered the Continental Hotel on the arm of Dr. Bainbridge who insisted that the aviators must have rest immediately after the luncheon given by Charge D' Affaires Sheldon Whitehouse at the Interallied Club at 2 o'clock this afternoon, the first item on the program of their Paris social calendar.

Pedley Inspected Commander Byrd's Ocean Going Plane

A message to friends from Pilot Chas. Pedley, official aviator of the Texas "Good Will" tour states he had the pleasure of inspecting the trans-Atlantic plane of Commander Byrd at the Long Island flying field where Pedley honed his plane during his New York stay.

Pedley stated the trip so far had been negotiated without mishap and that he and his flying companion A. B. Lewis of Tyler, were having a wonderful time.

BAPTIST PREACHER MUST SERVE SENTENCE FOR ALLEGED PERJURY IN FLOGGING CASE

By Associated Press.
Austin, Texas, July 2.—Executive clemency was denied the Rev. A. A. Davis, Georgetown Baptist preacher, today by Acting Governor Harry Miller, who Thursday had Davis' plea for relief from a two-year perjury conviction in connection with testimony in the purported Ku Klux Klan flogging Klux signature which testimony showed he handed T. W. Burleson, Mr. Miller said he did not feel justified in granting the preacher, Moody, then district attorney, who surrendered to officers at prosected the case.

Georgetown yesterday, either a furlough or a pardon, he said, "I'm sure Governor Moody, after he returns, will correct any mistake I have made."

Davis was charged with giving false testimony concerning a slip of paper, allegedly bearing a Ku Klux signature which testimony showed he handed T. W. Burleson, later a flogging victim. Governor justified in granting the preacher, Moody, then district attorney, who surrendered to officers at prosected the case.

EXCELLENT RESULTS BEING SECURED FROM MAX AVE. REVIVAL

LARGE CONGREGATION AT EACH SERVICE AND INTER-EST INCREASING

The most interesting meeting of the Max Avenue Methodist revival meeting was held Sunday evening.
A large number were present at this meeting and all were greatly impressed by the service. As a result of this service two were converted.

Rev. P. H. Gates delivered a very inspirational sermon on the subject, "The Effect of Sin and the Remedy for It." The minister read several passages of Scripture for his text, the first one was Mark 7:20-23, in which is recounted all of the things that sin is responsible for. The second reading was Romans 6:23, reading: "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." The third passage was: "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men to me," found in the 12th chapter of John.

"Some people might ask where sin came from," the minister said.
"If they would look in the 5th chapter of John they would find that sin originated with one man named Adam, who, after God had created the world and placed the animals there, made him in His own image and likeness. He was put in the garden with no restrictions, except that he not eat any of the fruit of one tree. Man is a free moral agent, he can do with his life what he wants to; God is not going to make him do his will, he can follow either path he wishes—the world or God way. He warns us, though, that the path of the world leads to destruction while His way leads to joy and peace, and to life eternal." Rev.
Mr. Gates said.

Sin Separation From God.
"Sin is the voluntary separation of the soul of man from God," the minister said. Notice the word "voluntary" in the definition. It is purely voluntary on our part which road we pursue. Some people might say that this is the definition of man, let's get a definition of sin from God's Word. In the Bible we find these words: "Whoever committeth sin transgretheth the law, for sin is a transgression of the law." The man who violates the laws of the State of Texas does it voluntarily, so does he violate the law of God," he declared.

"There are many kinds of sin that we could study but we only discuss two of them. Actual sin, a violation of the law just because we want to, he who does it must reap the penalty," Rev. Mr. Gates said. "The other sin is the sin of habit, a hereditary sin which is passed on from generation to generation; one man sinned and his sin was passed on through all generations."

In discussing the effects of sin,
the minister compared it to rust.
"Rust corrodes, eats up and destroys the metal that it is on.
Rust is a progressive thing. It keeps eating on the metal until it is destroyed, so with sin in our lives; it eats on our lives until it finally destroys it completely," he said.

"Sin is destructive; it wrecks and ruins our lives. It is easier to commit sin the second time than the first and each successive time it becomes easier until you finally become bold and open in your sinning. Sin will lie, steal, commit adultery and murder. Not every man out of the church is guilty of these sins, but every one guilty of these are sinners," the minister said.

Progress of Sin Illustrated.
The minister illustrated the progress of sin in our lives by adding drop by drop coloring matter to some pure water. When the water was red he added some other chemical to the water and it became clear again. Sin, he declared, turned our lives scarlet, while the blood of Jesus Christ transformed it once more into the clear and pure that it once was.

Using four nails and a magnet,
the minister illustrated the passage of Scripture: "If I be lifted up, will draw all men to me." Two of the nails represented men in the church, one of them was attracted to the magnet and clung to it, while the other one would not stick to the magnet. "They look just alike," the minister said,
"but they are different in their relation to the work of the church.
One can be depended on while the other cannot. The two other nails uplifted the women in the church; one clung to the magnet while the other did not. One woman could be depended on to help in the church while the other was undependable."

"The remedy for this is a practical application of Jesus Christ to our lives. He will take out from your life all of the dross and leave you pure. Will you come and accept Him and see if he will do what He says He will," the minister concluded.

Rev. P. H. Gates announced special meetings to be held this week. On Wednesday morning a service for the old folks, Friday morning a service for children, and Sunday evening was announced as family evening.

REUNION OF M'CLUNEY AND LOGAN FAMILY IS HELD AT RUSTIC CLUB

Special to the Sun:
Kerens, July 4.—Perhaps one of the most unique affairs ever held in Kerens was registered Friday when members of the McCluney family from different parts of Texas gathered to honor and entertain visitors from Mississippi, John and Ed Logan, brothers of Mrs. Mc-Cluney and R. H. Logan of this city.

A party of something like thirty people assembled at the country club and lake, privately owned by McCluney and Stockton which is located six miles south of Kerens among grove of shade trees lending their towering branches to enhance the beauty of this rustic place.
No better spot could be chosen for such an occasion and here was found a large group of people thoroughly enjoying a real outing of fishing, boating and other entertainment planned by Mr. and Mrs. Clem McCluney, host and hostess.

At the noon hour the happy family gathered around a long table which had been set on the large porch and partook of a sumptuous meal consisting of everything from fried chicken, other choice meats and all the trimmings.
Many pies were also prepared by the women folks and this was only a small part of the desserts.
There was ice cream and a large assortment of cakes for everybody.

After dinner a rest period was

RUSHING OF TEXAS HOGS TO MARKET BEEN CHECKED BY GENERAL RAINS OVER STATE

By Associated Press.

Fort Worth, Texas, July 4.—That the hurrying of hogs to market, which for a period, notably during the recent drought, threatened to deplete the porcine population of Texas, may have been checked to the great advantage of the state is deduced by observers here from figures released by the Fort Worth Stockyards Company.

Before the rains about the middle of June, the rush to market hogs assumed the proportions of a stampede, receipts at this principal market of the state breaking all records, but since the general precipitation receipts have taken a decided drop, which, it is pointed out, cannot be attributable altogether to market fluctuation.

The heavy movement to market which began in January of this year and reached a peak in March when 47,988 hogs were received here as compared with 23,124 in March, 1926, continued during the first two weeks of June, 4,808 hogs arriving here during the week ending June 13, the day of the general rains. During the week ending June 20, immediately after the rains, only 1,468 hogs reached this market, and the following week, ending June 27, 2,726 hogs arrived, observers pointed out.

"Because feed stocks were getting low, and, as a result of the drought, prospects for grain and new feed were decidedly poor, hog raisers were becoming chary of the situation, and desirous of ridding themselves of hogs," was the explanation of the movement advanced by Col. C. C. French, agricultural agent and an authority on hogs.

In many cases, farmers were disposing of brood sows for which they had paid $4 to $50 and sometimes more, as mere butchers, thereby seriously crippling their chances for profitable hog raising in the future, it was said.

"Prices are fair, grain prices are high, and the hogs are fat; therefore let us sell," was the reasoning of the average farmer, observers here declare.

But the opinion that the marketing has been checked is not unanimous among authorities here, for others, while admitting that hog receipts are considerably less since the rains, believe that the marketing movement will continue on account of high grain prices which make it unprofitable for most farmers to retain hogs. The future will depend on the grain prices, these persons contend.

All are agreed, however, that unless the dumping has been checked
